

European Forum 2023 in Helsinki

The changing operating environment challenges occupational accident and occupational disease insurance.

@ copyright Pikku-Finlandia

Conference venue Pikku-Finlandia is primarily built with wood and reflects its environment-conscious principles, both inside and out.

The changing operating environment challenges occupational accident and occupational disease insurance.

Global crises and changing risks affect our work. Next summer in Helsinki, we will consider how megatrends change working life and what effect it has on our industry. We also thought about what changes telecommuting would bring to insurance coverage. In the Vision Zero section, we hear the experiences of different countries and share good practices. Among other things, participants will get to hear and discuss these topics at the 2023 European Forum in Helsinki.

As usual, the European Forum will start on Wednesday, June 7, with working group meetings. On Thursday, we will all gather for a joint conference in Pikku-Finlandia. Pikku-Finlandia is an architecturally unique, modern wooden building that respects nature and its environment in a sustainable and beautiful way.

At the end of the day, we get tools for our own work. Brain researcher Katri Saarikoski explains how we maintain well-being, sustainability and the work of your brain in a changing digital world.

We spend Thursday evening in an atmospheric sea environment on an island off Helsinki. On Friday, the CEO's will continue at the Plenary Assembly.

You can find all the information about our event at one web address, which we will publish at the beginning of the year.

Summer Helsinki is full of light, warmth, culture and a unique atmosphere. Come learn, have fun and meet old and new friends from all over Europe!

Sari-Leena Lund
Finnish Workers' Compensation Center (TVK)
www.tvk.fi